ROTARY INTERNATIONAL NEWS

Rotary sponsors End Polio Now night at Phillies vs. Marlins game

By Arnold R. Grah
Rotary International News - 19 August 2008

Thousands of baseball fans provided a captive audience for the latest End Polio Now public service announcement during the August 6 baseball game between the Philadelphia Phillies and Florida Marlins. The big-screen presentation was part of Strike Out Hunger night, sponsored by Rotary districts 7500 and 7640 (New Jersey), an annual event involving more than 200 clubs from five districts in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware.

Rotary Foundation Trustee John Germ threw out the ceremonial first pitch and took part in pregame publicity for Rotary. Germ also chairs Rotary's US$100 Million Challenge Committee, which oversees RI's effort to match the $100 million grant for polio eradication awarded by the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation.

Strike Out Hunger night is the brainchild of the late Neil Garber, who served as district governor for districts 7500 and 7640. Every year, the districts work with the Philadelphia Phillies to reserve a block of tickets. The districts receive back a portion of the ticket sales, which they in turn donate to The Rotary Foundation. This year, the funds were earmarked for Rotary's US$100 Million Challenge, which supports RI's PolioPlus program.

Event coordinator Marvin Axler, a member of the Rotary Club of Garden State of Cherry Hill, New Jersey, said about 7,000 tickets were sold this year. While final figures are still being tabulated, the event usually raises between $25,000 to $50,000, he said. Over the 24 years Strike Out Hunger night has been in existence, $640,000 has been contributed, mostly to PolioPlus, he said.

When disaster strikes, Rotarians respond. Natural disasters have provided devastating reminders this year that nature doesn't discriminate. From wealthy nations to impoverished ones, no corner of the globe has been safe from catastrophe. But disasters have a way of drawing people together and erasing social and political barriers. After each incident, Rotary's local, regional, and international networks have proven crucial in bringing aid to those affected.

DEFINITION OF ROTARY

Rotary is an organization of business and professional leaders united worldwide, who provide humanitarian service, encourage high ethical standards in all vocations, and help build goodwill and peace in the world. Rotary is not a political organization, but all Rotarians are vitally concerned with everything pertaining to good citizenship and the election of good men and women to public office.

Rotary is not a charitable organization, yet its activities exemplify the charity and the sacrifices that one should expect from people who believe that they have a responsibility to help others.
