MEMBER PROFILE

Hendrik Brandt

Hendrik Brandt was born at Den Helder in The Netherlands before World War I. When He was 16 years old, he joined the Royal Dutch Navy.

After four years at The Royal Naval Academy, he received his commission as a Naval Officer and served on-board different naval ships in the former Dutch East- and West Indies. He specialized in hydrography and artillery. When the Germans occupied The Netherlands during World War II, all officers got the status of POW. He spent some time in POW camps at Nurnberg and in Poland.

After the War, Hendrik joined the Merchant Marine. From 1948-1966 he worked as a superintendent at the Head Office of Royal Interocen Lines (a large Dutch Shipping Company) in Hong Kong. After retiring, he returned to The Netherlands, where he was offered a job as Secretary of an Ocean Freight Conference covering the trade between NW Europe and the East Coast of the United States and Canada. In 1979 he retired again.

When Hendrik's two daughters decided that Milledgeville -- where one daughter lives -- was a good place to spend the rest of his life, he packed up and moved. It took another seven years doing real estate work before he really stopped working.

Hendrik has been married to his wife, Liliane Regout, for 69 years. They have three children -- two of them married to Americans and now living in the United States. He and his wife have always been active in sports and like to travel all over the world.

Rotary Foundation selects fourth group for peace program

The Rotary Foundation has selected its fourth group of professionals to study peace-building and conflict resolution in its three-month program in Thailand. Participants are chosen twice a year in a global competition based on their professional and academic achievements.

Started in 2006, the Rotary Peace and Conflict Studies Program at Chulalongkorn University in Bangkok is aimed at mid- and upper-level professionals who work in academic institutions, governments, nongovernmental organizations, media outlets, private corporations, and other settings that require a working knowledge of conflict resolution and mediation.

The 23 newly selected participants hail from 14 countries and will begin the program in January. They include a logistics operations assistant for the United Nations peace-keeping mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, a manager of a nongovernmental organization in Australia, and a journalist working in Kashmir. Upon graduation, they'll earn certificates in peace and conflict studies from the university. Participants, who receive financial aid from the Foundation, often find that their new skills help them advance in their careers.

Individuals interested in future sessions should contact their local Rotary clubs or e-mail bangkok.peacestudies@rotary.org for more information. Applications are being accepted for the July 2008 session and beyond.
